

Learn about life in a nursing home— from its residents, families and caregivers.

A Time of Transition is designed for nursing homes that wish to help their family members better understand the realities of nursing home life. When used correctly, this video will help your facility portray a realistic and positive portrait of life in a nursing home.

Using a documentary-style approach, families hear the convincing words of other family members, residents, caregivers and physicians as they discuss the often difficult topics of resident adjustment, family guilt, physical decline and aging.

A Time of Transition will help families gain a greater appreciation of how good communication with their nursing home staff will lead to a better quality of life for their loved one.
